MEMORANDUM

SUBJECT: Storage stability data for Prentox® Pyrethrum 20% Extract

FROM: Vern L. McFarland, Reviewer
Insecticide Branch
Registration Division (7505C)

TO: Ann Sibold, Acting Product Manager 10
Insecticide Branch
Registration Division (7505C)

The data presented in EPA Accession (MRID) Number 453103-01, having been obtained following a year long study conducted according to the requirements of Product Properties Test Guidelines of OPPTS 830.6317, Storage Stability, are adequate to demonstrate the ability of the subject product, EPA Reg. No. 655-75, "Prentox® Pyrethrum 20% Extract", to remain stable in concentration of the active ingredient for a period of 1 year, whether stored at room temperatures, or when exposed to cold or hot temperatures. This was true in 3 separate trials carried out over the same time period concurrently using 3 different solvents. The overall mean concentration for all 54 observations (3 solvents, 3 temperatures, 6 sample dates) was 19.840%, with a standard deviation of $\pm 0.305\%$, compared to an initial content of 20.112%, 20.060% and 20.209% in the 3 solvents. This is a loss in concentration of active ingredient of less than 1-1/2% in one year.

Although the overall data are acceptable, there are some minor deficiencies in the reporting of the data as required by OPPTS 830.6317, paragraph (c)(1), namely the exact temperature and humidity conditions under which the study was performed. The information that is described in paragraphs (c)(2) through (c)(5), although not required if there is no reason to provide it, namely deterioration of packaging, change in physical state, methods used to characterize the physical properties of a pesticide and a statistical evaluation of the concentration of the active ingredient in terms of mean and standard deviation, could easily be summarized by a statement that the packaging remained intact, there was no change in physical state, the characterization of physical properties as necessary and appropriate and a statement of the mean and standard deviation at the end of the study.
